Costs of Living in London

Depending on your lifestyle, the cost of living in London for a single student for six months is around £6000. It is entirely up to you how much you spend on food, drinks, and socialising, but budgeting is essential for getting the most out of your time and money. Going out is often more expensive the closer you get to the Central London. A night out, or simply going to the movies, may grow quite expensive, so you can choose to have the rare elegant evening in Central London, or to socialise more frequently but in less expensive regions. Checking out local listings and discount code websites may help you locate cheap, and sometimes even free, evenings out.

UK Weather

The one thing you can predict about the UK weather is that it is unpredictable. Even in the summer it often rains so make sure you always carry an umbrella. The coldest months are December, January and February, when the average temperature is usually between 3 and 6°C (37-42°F) The warmest months are July and August, when the average temperature is usually between 16 and 21°C (60-70°F). However, there is rain throughout the year, and the weather in England can change very rapidly so make sure to pack a range of clothes.
